Specialist comms recruiter JMA Network saw a 300% rise in vacancies, candidates, and placements during the period September to December 09.

Compared to the previous period, this indicated a sustained uplift in both client and candidate confidence.

Project Recruitment Director, Donovan Lawrence, commented: "Right across the board we have received significantly more requirements for sales, service and even management as companies identify their staffing needs for 2010.

"The engineering side of data and wireless technologies is definitely in the spotlight now. Most importantly, we are seeing the number of applications from candidates currently in work returning to pre-recession levels. Many more people believe this is now the time to move jobs, in search of promotion and better pay."
